

Border Atrocities Must End--Dragnet Out for Renegades

Washington Finally Tires of Murders and Raiding Expeditions of the Near-Border Mexicans

ARMY IS ORDERED TO ROUND THEM UP

(By United Press) Washington, Oct. 23.—A dragnet was thrown out today by United States troops and secret service men on the Mexican border in the search for Mexican outlaws active in recent raids.

A man hunt of immense proportions is in progress. Officials admitted today that the border situation is critical. Steps to check the raiders are under the personal direction of President Wilson. He has given Secretary of War Garrison and Attorney General Gregory authority to resort to drastic measures.

Because of the inception of the raids on American soil, the wildest rumors regarding border complications were in circulation today. One report was that Villa was instigating the attacks upon American troops in reprisal for this government's recognition of Carranza.

Brownsville, Texas, Oct. 23.—Two Mexicans were shot and killed by American soldiers late yesterday near San Pedro ranch twelve miles up the river. It was reported here today. The Mexicans armed and carrying packs believed to contain loot were paddling across the Mexican side when the soldiers discovered them. The bodies have not been recovered. Soldiers and armed civilians continued to round up Mexicans in this vicinity and those who cannot give a good account of themselves are held.

N. Y. C. STORING COAL IN PREPARATION FOR STRIKE

Forty Men Put to Work This Morning and More Wanted

This morning about 40 men were put to work storing coal up at the yards in East End in preparation for the winter and in fear of a strike. The officials pressed about 30 men who have been loafing about the yards for the past three months, into service and are giving work to all who apply.

The company that received word that there is a possibility of a strike of miners in the near future and so as to avoid a scarcity of fuel this winter they have started to store all the coal which they can secure. It is probable that several thousand tons will be stored in the yards before the winter months.

HALF MILLION BLOCK MEN FOR 1917 CAMPAIGN

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Paris, Sept. 25.—(By Mail).—An army of half a million black men will be ready for the 1917 summer campaign if the plan of Deputy Pierre Masse is supported in the Chamber by his fellow members.

At the beginning of the war 60,000 natives of Africa came to France to fight for their new flag. These Tunisians, Algerians, Moroccans, Senegalese and so forth—"Turcos" most people call them now, stretching the term a little—have fought well and proved their ability to stand the colder climate.

Deputy Masse figures that the army of 500,000 would not be difficult to raise. It will be a "paid" army, not conscripts. The natives would not submit to conscription. As the native can live on a cent a day, 10 cents a day appeals to him as a small fortune. Masse contemplates giving the wife of the volunteer 10 cents a day, also 10 cents to his father. His family taken care of, his own wants provided for by the army, the black and yellow man, Masse believes, will rally in large numbers to the call.

Exclusive of negro Africa, French colonial possessions have 45 million inhabitants.

ITALIAN PRIEST BLESSING ITALIAN HEAVY ART TILLERY HOWITZER

REPORTS ARE THAT BIG GAME IS PLENTIFUL THIS SEASON

Marked Scarcity of Rabbit, Pheasant and Squirrel in All Sections

From Indications It Will be a Busy Season on Mountains This Year—Six New Camps Being Constructed by Hunters.

According to present indications the big game season this year will be as successful as in preceding years. Although there is a marked scarcity in the smaller game such as pheasant, squirrel and rabbit, deer and bear are to be found in as great quantity as in former years. The fact that the smaller game is scarce is due to the humidity of the weather and the scarcity of food. This fact is true of all the surrounding country but especially so in the mountains as the pheasant are working in toward the settled regions where they are able to secure their food with less difficulty.

In an interview with Game Commissioner Hummelsbaugh, he stated that the elk which the state placed on the game reserve several years ago, was increasing in number and growing rapidly in stature. They are not annoying any of the farmers who live in that neighborhood, as was expected when they were first placed there but instead are staying near the game preserve, where they are under the protection of the rangers.

From reports the activities on the mountain at the present time are livelier than they have been in recent years. There are no camps of any consequence that will not be occupied during deer season and there are six new ones which have either been built or are under construction at the present time.

Probably the largest building going up is that of the game commissioners which is built at the Smith place near the game reserve. This house will be occupied by the commissioner and the rangers during the hunting season. A new camp in Rishel Hollow which is being built by a crowd of young men and a camp at the Weir place will be completed in the near future. Other camps which are being constructed are the Merrill camp, one near the site of Jenny's old camp and another at Panther rocks. These camps are being built by the business men of the town who go to the mountains every winter for two weeks' recreation.

RECRUITING GIVEN IMPETUS BY EXECUTION OF CAVELL

Britons Worked up to Fine Degree of Hatred of Germans

(By United Press) London, Oct. 23.—Taking instant advantage of the impetus given to army enlistments by Miss Edith Cavell's execution in Brussels, recruiting officers were pushing their campaign vigorously throughout the British Isles today. The Cavell case was used openly as an argument as a means of stirring up feeling against Germans to a pitch where men suitable for military service cannot resist the impulse to fight them.

LOCAL ELECTIONS MAY INDICATE POLITICAL SENTIMENT

National Issues Being Used in Election of Mass. Governor

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Washington, Oct. 23.—Three state and five congressional elections to be held November 2 are looked to by national committees here to furnish an indication of the present political sentiment of the country.

Perhaps the most closely watched contest is that for the governorship of Massachusetts. The present governor, David I. Walsh, Democrat, is a candidate for re-election, and opposing him is former Congressman Samuel W. McCall.

Both parties have been using national issues to a large extent in their campaigns, and the result is expected to be an intimation of the disposition of New England toward the two national parties.

O. W. Weller, Republican, is running against E. C. Harrington, Democrat, for the governorship of Maryland. Internal political strife has put this state in the Republican rank. The Republicans say they will hold it this year.

In Kentucky, normally a Democratic state, Gov. A. O. Stanley is running for re-election against E. P. Morrow, Democrat.

In the thirty-sixth New York congressional district, left vacant by the death of Sermo Payne, Norman J. Gould, Seneca Falls, Republican, is running against G. L. Licht, Geneva, Democrat. Congressman Payne carried the district by 11,553 in 1914.

In the Twenty-third district, New York City, W. S. Bennett, Republican, is running against E. J. Healy, Democrat. This district went Democratic by 6,822 in 1914. In the Thirty-first New York district, B. F. Small, Potsdam, Republican, is opposing W. L. Allen, Malone, Democrat. In 1914, the Republicans carried this district by 9,870.

There will be elections to fill vacancies in the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania and Fourth South Carolina districts.

The suffrage issue will come before the electors of four states—New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Recent statements by President Wilson and members of his cabinet have given the suffragists strong hope for victory.

In several states there will be elections to county and other offices.

ALLIES WILL AID SERBIANS BEFORE TEUTONS GET NISH

Large Force Advancing Northward From Salonika With Relieve Hard-Pressed Serbs

Bulgarians and Austro-Germans Meeting With Further Successes, According to London Reports.

(By United Press) London, Oct. 23.—From reports that the allies are now advancing north from Salonika it was believed today that an important battle was near with the Bulgarian forces astraddle the Salonika-Nish railway south of Uskub.

To break this Bulgarian line or to throw the invaders back to the south will be necessary before the French-British troops can get to the Serbians aid against the Austro-Germans in the north.

The Teutonic front from all accounts is progressing southward so slowly that confidence was increasing of the allies' ability to reinforce the Serbians adequately in time to save Nish.

Russians were maintaining a most successful offensive today in Galicia and north in the Dvinsk section.

London, Oct. 23.—A heavy movement of allied troops from Salonika towards Serbia was in progress, according to Athens dispatches.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Rapid Teutonic advance in Serbia was reported in a war office report issued this afternoon. Instead of remaining stuck fast along a line twelve of fifteen miles south of the Danube river and winding with the stream, the Germans and Austrians were said to be operating in places some 35 miles south of the stream with the Serbians retreating before them.

Govt. Contracts Food

Berlin, Oct. 23.—"Food supplies and price regulations," said an official announcement today, "which hitherto have been in the hands of the state authorities are about to be taken in hand by the federal government. It is considered necessary to equalize conditions in various parts of the empire. The supply is abundant, but it is desired to avoid differences and to make distributions evenly throughout Germany, assuring a sufficiency everywhere at reasonable cost."

Paris, Oct. 23.—The Serbians are now on the offensive along their northern frontier and the Austro-Germans have stopped their advance for the time, according to Athens advices today. The Bulgarians' invasion was said to consist of mere raids several of which were reported repulsed, and in some places, it was asserted, the Serbians were operating on the Bulgarian side of the frontier.

Bucharest, Oct. 23.—Russian troops will land on the Bulgarian front within two weeks, according to an assertion here today by one of the Czar's adjutants.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Repulse by the Austrians of an Italian attack with enormous losses and a rout of the Russians who had driven a wedge into the Teutonic lines at a certain point on the battle front, were reported by the war office today.

Bulgarians have occupied Negotin and Rogeljevo, Serbia according to an official announcement this afternoon.

New Houses Are to Spring Up Soon in West Side District

Realty Corporation Buys Eight Acres of Building Lots, and Will Commence Construction At Once

BUILDING CONTRACT TO BE LET SOON

A realty transaction which may mean the solution of Clearfield's housing problem was closed yesterday when the Clearfield Land and Improvement company took title to the tract of land bounded by 5th and 9th streets, and Clearfield and Locust streets, West Side, containing 100 building lots in a tract approximately eight acres.

It is the purpose of the company immediately to begin the construction of small dwelling houses which will be rented or sold on the partial payment plan. Contracts are to be let today for the foundations of ten or more houses, and actual building will begin next week. Complete plans of the company are not available at this time, but it is asserted that houses will be put up fast as workmen can be secured to build them.

It is the present plan of the company to build moderately priced structures which will rent for a nominal sum, or which tenants can buy on deferred payments in the same manner as building and loan houses are sold.

MOVE SERBIAN CAPITAL

WAR NEWS OF ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

France admitted German advances near Dinan and La Bassee, but claimed an Allied advance east of Neuport and the taking of roads commanding the valley of the Aisne.

English monitors aided the Belgian army's assault on the German right wing, repulsing Neuport attacks, London claimed. The British destroyer Bodger rammed and sank a German U-boat off the Dutch coast, the British said. Canadian expeditionary troops replaced Hindus in Egypt, Berlin heard.

General advances east of Ypres and southwest of Lille and the crossing of the Yser canal in violent fighting, were Germany's claims for the day. Vienna claimed the Austrians permitted the Russians to cross the San, then defeated them, inflicting heavy losses.

Russia claimed the Austro-Germans were driven back 40 miles from Warsaw and continued to retreat, offering feeble resistance.

CONGRESS WILL BE ASKED TO RE-ENACT WEEKS LAW

Law Making Yearly Appropriations For Acquisition of Forests, Expires

Washington, Oct. 23.—One of the important questions to be brought to the attention of congress early in the forthcoming session will be the re-enactment of the Weeks law providing for the expenditure of $2,000,000 annually by the federal government for the acquisition of mountain forests, lands and watersheds necessary for the protection of standing timber and navigable waters. This popular law, which was adopted by congress in March, 1911, expired during the past summer, but the good work accomplished through its provisions during the four years of its operation has led to a general demand for its re-enactment, with the result that the American Forestry association, Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts who was author of the original measure, and others interested in the national conservation movement, have announced their intention of urging early action by congress.

During the comparatively short life of the original Weeks law, the department of agriculture sent agents into Georgia, Maine, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia, to make surveys of the timber lands and watersheds in these states, with the result that 1,217,551 acres of land were approved for purchase by the government, at a cost of approximately $5,000,000 the total amount provided in the Weeks law for the four years work.

"It is of national importance that the mountain watersheds be protected so that the stream can be capable of the highest development, and that the soils shall not be washed from the mountain sides nor the property of individuals and communities ruined or damaged by floods that could, in part, be restrained," said Senator Weeks today. "This was what we sought to accomplish in the law enacted in 1911, and now that the practicability of the movement has been demonstrated, I should be gratified to see it continued."

NOT A PARALLEL CASE

An invasion of Greece welcomed by the Greek people with open arms can scarcely challenge comparison with the tragic and bloody drive through Belgium against the solemn protest and heroic resistance of a united nation, but unquestionably there was a technical violation of neutrality territory when the Allies landed at Salonica to march to the aid of Serbia, and the two-queque accusations of the Teutons—denouncing the allies as being no less lawless than themselves—were inevitable.

As to actual conditions there is no parallel whatever. War upon Greece by the allies will not follow, and Greece may not even be drawn into the struggle on either side. The Greeks wish to see their sorely-pressed northern ally Serbia, receive aid, and they are friendly to the foreign troops on their soil, and these latter will no doubt carefully abstain from giving cause for offense in the course of the march. Premier Venizelos formally protested in the name of neutrality, but is understood to have privately winked at the proceeding. The accounts indicate that there is no hostility except in the royal household, and this is attributed to the fact that King Constantine's wife is a German princess. The final issue of this interesting affair can not now be foreseen, but the outside world is glad to feel confident that the tragic history of Belgium will not be repeated and that the Greeks in general are well satisfied.

THE TURKS BEYOND OUR REACH

It is reported that the massacres of the Armenian Christians in Asiatic Turkey have been removed on a large scale since Bulgaria's entrance into the war as Turkey's ally. The pressure to induce our government to take action of some sort and now no doubt be increased, although no answer has been received to the representations from the state department some time ago warning Turkey that further atrocities would "alienate the sympathy" of the American people. A second such warning is not likely to bring any better results.

Turkey is probably aware that she has never really enjoyed American "sympathy." In any case it has been made plain that she did not care anything about it even before she became a member of an active and vastly powerful war alliance. In fact, it was clearly intimated to our government a year ago that the Turks would tolerate no interference in their domestic affairs. A. Rustem Bey, the minister of the Constantinople government at Washington, talked so defiantly and offensively that his recall was requested. He went home nominally on "leave of absence" but his government has never disavowed his behavior or made any sign whatever.

The occasion for this outbreak as will be remembered, was the alleged effort of Great Britain and France to induce the United States to send warships to Turkish waters as a means of preventing the massacre or Armenians. The Turkish minister not only denounced the proposition but frankly intimated that the American pot was blacker than the Turkish kettle, referring to lynchings of Italians and negroes in this country. He said that for the Turkish savagery there was "provocation," but for the American there was none—or words to that effect. He seemed to think that the massacre of Christians who gave offense only by their faith was a very small matter compared with the shooting down of a band of Italian assassins in New Orleans some years ago and the occasional lynching of a negro guilty or believed to be guilty of a crime. He did not even claim that the reports of the massacres were exaggerated. He simply excused them and made counter charges against this country.

It is worth while to call all this new, for, in view of such an attitude on the part of the Turkish government a year ago, what can be expected now? Could further representations do more than merely invite further discourtesy? In view of the disturbed state of Europe and the obstinate Turkish alliance with the powerful Teutonic combination, inaction on our government's part would seem to be unavoidable so long as no outrages upon

American citizens are reported. It is painful to turn a deaf ear to the cry of helpless innocents, but it seems necessary to accept the massacres as an essential part of the accumulating tragedies of an unparalleled war. Apparently our government can accomplish nothing without going to war with Turkey, which would involve war with all Turkey's allies.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

"There is a strong Serbian population of long settlement in the south of Hungary, whose villages cover a considerable region in the Magyar kingdom opposite Serbian Belgrade and Semendria," says a war primer just given out by the National Geographic Society. "This colony, or rather, these colonies have taken no inconsiderable part in the history of Austria-Hungary, and both the colonies and Austrian Crown owe a score of gratitude to one another."

"The foundations of the Serbian colony in Hungary were laid following the decisive Turkish victory upon the plain of Kosovo on June 15, 1389. Here, the soldiers of Sultan Murad I finally crushed the independence of the Serbian tribes, though the Sultan himself was killed upon the field of battle by a Serbian knight. The Turks sold the Serbians as slaves in the markets of Constantinople, while the Janissaries stationed in their lands made life unbearable for such as remained behind. Therefore, an influx of Serbians took place across the northern border."

"As a consequence of the Serbian settlements and of their value as out-post defenders against the ever widening dominion of the Turks, George Brankovitch, Serbian despot, was granted fiefs in Hungary, and valuable concessions were granted to his people. The Serbian influx increased during Austria's wars with the Turks, 1683-1699, and the newcomers did valiant service under the Imperial standard. Emperor Leopold I granted them political and religious independence in recognition. The relations between the Serbians and the Austrians were generally of the best until the foundation of an independent Serbian state and the Balkan intrigues of Austria, Russia, Great Britain and Turkey, when a final and definite estrangement gradually came about. The old Serbian colonies in Hungary have since come to be looked upon as a Serbia 'irredenta.'"

LITTLE TALKS ON HEALTH AND HYGIENE

By Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D.

A day spent in school by a half sick child may result in a week's serious illness. If, as so often happens, the slight indisposition proves to be the beginning of some communicable disease, the result is that the other children in the school are exposed and these who are susceptible will follow in turn.

School authorities are naturally anxious to secure regularity of attendance on the part of the scholars and many parents feel that they are simply doing their duty in forcing children to go to school who complain of not feeling well. It is much better for a child to lose an occasional day's schooling than to risk occasional on an illness and exposing others.

Children's recuperative powers, generally speaking, are superior to those of older people. Proper rest and care will often ward off serious illness but this requires care and insight on the part of the parents as the children themselves are not apt to call attention to their condition until they become seriously ill.

Loss of appetite, feverishness, lassitude, discoloration of the eyes, are all indications which should be watched by symptoms of indisposition.

The work which children lose in the schools they can make up far more readily than what they lose in health. Satisfactory mental progress cannot be made unless health is first considered and school authorities should realize that the total amount of time lost is far greater owing to the added possibility of spreading communicable disease when half sick children are permitted in school.

When children are ill their playmates should not be permitted to go to see them until it is absolutely certain that they are not suffering from some communicable disease. Colds are communicable. Parents should see that their children do not visit other youngsters who are ill and infants should never be taken into houses where there is danger of their contracting illness from children who are not well.

3,000 MEN TO MARCH WITH 25,000 NEW YORK SUFFRAGISTS TODAY.

Led by James Lee Laidlaw, the banker, and "The Noble 92," a brave original male suffrage marchers, 3,000 New York men today were ready to join the monster campaign-climax parade of 25,000 New York suffragists up Fifth Avenue and through the heart of New York.

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) New York, Oct. 23.—What probably is the biggest suffrage parade on record was scheduled to start up Fifth Avenue this evening. Twenty-five thousand women and 3,000 men, carrying 25,000 fluttering banners, were forming in marching order to inspect enough favorable New York votes to give suffrage a landslide at the November 2nd election.

Among the 3,000 men marchers were such well-known personalities as these: Will Irwin, author; George Middleton, playwright; William M. Mackay, artist; Allen McCurdy, clergyman; Samuel Merwin, author; William Rees Benet, editor; Wythe Binner, poet; Sinclair Lewis and Charles Norris, authors.

These were supplemented by doctors, lawyers, actors, business men and just citizens.

Gigantic banners declaring "Women Is For Suffrage," "Suffrage Means Better Babies," "Suffrage Means Pure Milk," "Suffrage Means Clean Streets," "Seven Million Women Vote Elsewhere in the World; Why Not in New York?" and costing about $2,500 made the parade a veritable river of gay colors. In the midst of all the bright banners, however, will be this solemn cry in a deep, black border: "New York Women Have No Vote At All!"

Mrs. Leonard Thomas, Newport society leader, will carry the International Woman Suffrage Alliance's banner that will head the big parade, she will be the first woman in the entire line walking in advance of Mrs. Curtis Chapman Scott.

This section will include a "proxy procession" of the twenty-six nations represented in the alliance, but no national colors will be carried except that America and Uncle Sam will lead the women who are a real public

A POINTER ABOUT GLASSES

Our examinations show that 10 out of 100 people are wearing glasses. This is a very small percentage. The fact is that the eyes are the most important part of the body and should be given the most careful attention. If you are wearing glasses, make sure they are the right ones. If you are not wearing glasses, get them. They will save you a great deal of trouble and expense in the long run.

SUPFRAGISTS OBSERVE ANNI-VERSARY.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 23.—The women suffragists of Massachusetts, who confidently expect to win in the election next month, rallied in Worcester today for a big celebration of the anniversary of the first national woman's rights convention, which met here in 1850. As the guests of honor and principal speaker the suffragists invited Dr. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, who is the only survivor of those who addressed the convention here in 1850. Dr. Blackwell celebrated here ninety-sixth birthday last May.

PENNSYLVANIA'S FIRST SCHOOL MASTER.

Norristown, Oct. 23.—Some of the foremost men of Pennsylvania assembled today at the village of Skipback, in this county, to attend the unveiling of a monument to Christopher Dock, who was the first schoolmaster in the state. Gov. Brumbaugh, former Gov. Pennypacker, and Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, state superintendent of public instruction, were among those who appeared on the program. Dock opened his school at Skipback in 1714. He was the first American to write on pedagogy. He died in 1771.

DE-HYPHENATION OF ALIENS IS BEGUN BY GOVERNMENT

Bureau of Education Launches A Campaign of Education For Alien Children

Posters Sent Out Over Country Urge Foreigners to Attend Night Schools and Become Good Americans.

THESE ARE THE WORDS OF WILSON'S WARNING TO "THE HYPHENATED."

"There are among us who have not thought first of America, who have thought to use the might of America in some matter not of America's origination. I am in a hurry to have a line-up and let the men who are thinking first of other countries stand on one side—biblically, it should be left—and all those that are for America, first last and all the time, on the other side."

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Washington, Oct. 21.—Augmenting President's Wilson's declaration that America's foreign born residents must be de-hyphenated, the U. S. Bureau of Education today announced the beginning of a vigorous country-wide de-hyphenating campaign.

A three-part constructive program is being developed by the bureau, with the following features:

The insuring that newly-arrived immigrant children are immediately placed in the public schools and not sent into factories and mills.

The promotion of the naturalization of alien residents of the United States.

The teaching of English to all foreign born residents of this country who can not read and speak that language.

The first step, that of seeing that newly-arrived immigrant children are placed in schools, is now being carried out through co-operation between the various school officials of the country and the immigration officials at the ports of entry.

When a group of immigrants arrive, the inspectors at the port learn to what localities the individual families with children are going. They then send to the proper school authorities the names of the children they can expect. These officials then make strenuous efforts to prevent any evasion of the compulsory education laws by getting the children into schools as soon as they arrive.

In addition, the school authorities are also actively engaged in "recruiting" work among the fathers of these children to induce them to take out naturalization papers.

A first edition of 50,000 brightly-colored, attractively printed posters, setting forth in English and the six principal immigrant languages the advantages of becoming a citizen, have been published. The bureau is sending these posters to 25,000 postmasters and 8,000 school officials throughout the country, by whom they will be posted conspicuously to catch the eye of the unaccustomed immigrant.

Educational authorities are also following up this printed appeal with personal talks to immigrants. A series of receptions is being planned at which both government officials and naturalized immigrants will talk to these men.

The posters sent out impress upon every alien who can not read and speak English, the importance of learning the language from the standpoint of becoming a good citizen and making a good wage. They tell him to go to the nearest night school and register or to go to the postmaster or school official nearest him and enlist their aid in getting in touch with a school.

In a letter to school superintendents the Bureau of Education points out that there are 2,953,000 foreign-born whites 10 years or over in the United States and no less than 2,898,606, 15 years or over, generally beyond the compulsory education laws, who can not speak English. Commenting upon this situation the letter says:

"These facts seem so appalling when taken in connection with the figures for illiteracy which are almost as large, that they call for action on the part of the federal government which will reach the non-English-speaking immigrant individually."

Officials of the bureau intimated, unofficially, that in times of national crises such a situation might easily prove, if not disastrous, at least extremely embarrassing to the government.

Realizing the danger of having such a large body of the inhabitants of this country almost wholly unacquainted with the national thought of the nation, the bureau is going to push the campaign of education through with all the force and speed possible and probably will ask con-timates for the next appropriation.

GOVERNMENT EDUCATOR PRAISES NEWSPAPER ASSISTANCE.

Washington, Oct. 21.—"The smaller newspapers of the country try to have their credit one of the really great achievements of the last few years—I mean the spread of compulsory education," declared W. Carson Ryan, Jr., editor of the United States Bureau of Education, in an interview with the United Press.

"Two years ago there was six states without compulsory education laws; today there are but two. The change is largely due to the smaller newspapers. 'Here, in the Bureau of Education, we have learned from years of experience to depend upon the paper of this type. 'It is a spurious thing that much of the educational progress of today is being made in the smaller towns. The big city has the system, the organization, the discipline; but the smaller city is apt to have the independence and spirit that makes for progress. 'The small newspaper is not able for its boosting of progressive ideas. It is apt to be in closer touch with its constituency.'"

HOME FOLKS HONOR BILL CARRIGAN.

Lewiston, Me., Oct. 22.—The good folk of Androscoggin County turned out en masse today to do honor to their most distinguished fellow citizen—William Carrigan, the man who piloted the Boston American league base ball team to the world's championship. The big affair was not only a welcome-home demonstration but a birthday celebration as well, for it was just thirty-two years ago today that "Our Bill" opened his eyes and found himself in the town of Lewiston.

The Lewiston chamber of commerce arranged the Carrigan celebration as a climax to the annual harvest carnival that has held forth here this week. Invitations were sent to the governor of Maine, representatives in congress, mayors of the principal cities and other "great lights" of the Pine Tree State to grace the occasion with their presence. The celebration program provided for a big parade, music by several bands, a display of fireworks and a reception to Manager Carrigan at the City Hall.

Carrigan is a simon-pure Lewiston product. Lewiston was his birthplace and Lewiston has always been his home. His first base ball training was received on the Lewiston high school team. At the age of 17 he went to Worcester to attend Holy Cross College. As a member of the Holy Cross team Bill soon developed into a star player behind the bat.

Carrigan's brilliant work as a college player attracted the attention of several major league clubs who offered to sign him. Bill picked Boston as the town to play in and in 1906 affixed his J. Hancock to a Red Sox contract. Being a "rah, rah" past-timer Bill was shipped to Toronto, where he could inhale some professional atmosphere before becoming a big show regular.

Carrigan remained with the Toronto team but a short time when the sale of Lou Criger to the St. Louis Browns brought him back to Boston. William lost no time in showing that he was the proper person to fill Criger's shoes.

Several young backstops carded as wonders have broken into the big yard in late years, but Bill remains the same old "brick house" behind the plate. Apparently there will be no need to hang a "to let" sign on him for some years to come.

Carrigan made his debut as a manager in 1913, when he was selected to succeed Jake Stahl as pilot of the Red Sox. Now he is manager of the world's champions. Some rush to the front, that.

Fashion Hints By Margsret Mason

BY MARGARET MASON, (Written for The United Press)

Oh look who's here! They're models, dear. To show you what is smart; If you'd be swell Just eye them well And follow what they start.

New York, Oct. 22.—Miss New York certainly ought to know how to dress and where and when with all the divers fashion shows going on for her benefit these last two weeks.

Mrs. Belle Armstrong Whitney started the fashionable ball rolling with her show at the Cohan theatre and left Miss and also Mr. New York gasping at her display of beauteous model frocks and frills on even more beauteous living models.

She has now moved on to give Miss Philadelphia, Miss Boston, Miss Washington, Miss Chicago and all the other American Misses a chance to see what's what in the fashion line.

Then Wanamaker's and Gimbel's gave their fashion promenades and the big fashion show for the benefit of the Actor's fund at Carnegie Hall added new tips and much zest with the confections shown to advantage on real live actress models.

May Irwin, Marie Dressler and Tride Friganza were there of course, but being perfect fifty-sixes they contended themselves and the public by being dainty little program sellers nor aspired to join the living model class.

Last but not least came Lucile's select opening. None of the common herd were admitted to this most exclusive of fashion shows. No two-dollar theatre ticket even could pry the hol polloi into this most holy of holies.

Only the lucky possessor of a mauve, engraved card of invitation could hope to obtain admission; and even then the press of select ones was so great that special little gray-frocked ventures had to hold fast to the front door against encroaching and panting females.

Once inside the portals of 37 W. 57th Street, which is the house of Lucile, Ltd., the lucky invited ones settled down in the pearl tinted interior on a precarious gold chair and marveled again.

To the strains of the most insidious music, six of the most pulchritudinous models in captivity glided, (real honest to goodness models never walk,) in changing raiment that would make even the lilies of the field fade away in hopeless unattainment.

Each and every toilette designed by Lucile has a pet name all its own. "Softly Purring" is a Champagne velvet gown, if you please; "What Every Woman Knows," a feasted scarlet chiffon and silver tea dress; "I Miss You So," a black and white check velvet afternoon dress; "The Vibrant Heart of Heaven," a sapphire blue tulle and brocade evening gown; "Sniego 'wrochka," a white velvet and black fox restaurant gown and "Svand Aljure," a black and silver brocade evening coat.

It really must take as much of an artist to christen the gowns as to design 'em. Think how trifling it must be to Lucile as she lolls in her Louis Seize bed and thinks up first of a ravishing restaurant gown, a delectable tea dress or a fascinating dance frock, to have a waiting secretary or one of her entourage say:

"Well, now that you have thought the dress, what are you going to name it?"

I understand Lucile designs her most successful creations in bed. Some of them look like it. It wasn't so much the frocks that left me gasping as the models wavered by, but their hair. Goodness knows the gowns were amazing enough with their tight-boned bodices, full crinoline skirts and all the earmarks of 1850, but the most amazing thing of all was the coiffures. I wonder does Lucile design them too.

One model wore her hair parted in the middle and smoothed down tight and slick in front with a little tight braid draped down around each ear.

A blonde had hers parted in the middle and also slicked down over each ear and slicked up in the back until it erupted in a fan-shaped loop on the top of her head.

Yet another blonde in a wondrous white satin and green embroidered dance frock dubbed "To Smile Again" had her hair all peeled back from her face and done in a coronet braid stuck through with a diamond arrow at such a killing angle as to guarantee the blinding of her first dancing partner of the evening.

Aren't you just dying to buy heaps of Lucile models so you can languidly say: "Well, I guess I'll wear my 'Over the Garden Wall,' this morning; and this afternoon I'll slip on 'My Part I'll Play,' but I just can't make up my mind whether to wear 'Ghosts of Dead Roses' or 'Sun Blest Are You' for this evening?"

FOR SALE—Male weighing ten hundred. Will work double or single and is good for driving or farm work. Also wish to sell harness and buggy. Inquire Stanley Dismick, Rockton.

LORD BRYCE PLAMES EUROPEAN WAR UPON THE TELEGRAPH

(By United Press)

London, Oct. 23.—A new "cause" of the European war, and one of the most original yet given, has been propounded by Lord Bryce, former British ambassador at Washington, who attributes the conflict to the invention of the telegraph. In an address before the British Academy, Lord Bryce thus put the blame on telegraphy.

"In the twelve fatal days between July and August 4 last year, there was no time for reflection. Telegrams between London and Paris crossed one another, and it would have needed a mind of more than human amplitude and energy to grasp and correlate all the issues involved and to foresee the results that would follow the various lines of action possible in a game so complicated."

"Even the intellect of a Caesar or a Bonaparte would have been unequal to the task."

"Here the telegraph has worked for evil. Had the communications passed by written dispatches as they would have done eighty years ago, it is probable that war might have been avoided."

Border Atrocities Must End--Dragnet Out for Renegades

Washington Finally Tires of Murders and Raiding Expeditions of the Near-Border Mexicans

ARMY IS ORDERED TO ROUND THEM UP

(By United Press) Washington, Oct. 23.—A dragnet was thrown out today by United States troops and secret service men on the Mexican border in the search for Mexican outlaws active in recent raids.

A man hunt of immense proportions is in progress. Officials admitted today that the border situation is critical. Steps to check the raiders are under the personal direction of President Wilson. He has given Secretary of War Garrison and Attorney General Gregory authority to resort to drastic measures.

Because of the inception of the raids on American soil, the wildest rumors regarding border complications were in circulation today. One report was that Villa was instigating the attacks upon American troops in reprisal for this government's recognition of Carranza.

N. Y. C. STORING COAL IN PREPARATION FOR STRIKE

Forty Men Put to Work This Morning and More Wanted

This morning about 40 men were put to work storing coal up at the yards in East End in preparation for the winter and in fear of a strike. The officials pressed about 30 men who have been loafing about the yards for the past three months, into service and are giving work to all who apply.

The company that received word that there is a possibility of a strike of miners in the near future and so as to avoid a scarcity of fuel this winter they have started to store all the coal which they can secure. It is probable that several thousand tons will be stored in the yards before the winter months.

HALF MILLION BLOCK MEN FOR 1917 CAMPAIGN

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Paris, Sept. 25.—(By Mail).—An army of half a million black men will be ready for the 1917 summer campaign if the plan of Deputy Pierre Masse is supported in the Chamber by his fellow members.

At the beginning of the war 60,000 natives of Africa came to France to fight for their new flag. These Tunisians, Algerians, Moroccans, Senegalese and so forth—"Turcos" most people call them now, stretching the term a little—have fought well and proved their ability to stand the colder climate.

Deputy Masse figures that the army of 500,000 would not be difficult to raise. It will be a "paid" army, not conscripts. The natives would not submit to conscription. As the native can live on a cent a day, 10 cents a day appeals to him as a small fortune. Masse contemplates giving the wife of the volunteer 10 cents a day, also 10 cents to his father. His family taken care of, his own wants provided for by the army, the black and yellow man, Masse believes, will rally in large numbers to the call.

Exclusive of negro Africa French colonial possessions have 45 million inhabitants.

Brownsville, Texas, Oct. 23.—Two Mexicans were shot and killed by American soldiers late yesterday near San Pedro ranch twelve miles up the river. It was reported here today. The Mexicans armed and carrying packs believed to contain loot were paddling across the Mexican side when the soldiers discovered them. The bodies have not been recovered. Soldiers and armed civilians continued to round up Mexicans in this vicinity and those who cannot give a good account of themselves are held.

WHY JANE ADDAMS DOESN'T THINK DIPLOMATS FITTED TO SETTLE WAR

"I am not disparaging members of the various diplomatic corps when I say that they are not fitted for positions on a commission to settle wars, for their minds have been trained to consider problems from the point of view of their own countries. We must have men whose minds are trained to visualize the needs of all nations."

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Chicago, Oct. 23.—Broad-minded men of great mental attainments whose lives have been devoted to the betterment of humanity, are the men Jane Addams would have upon the World's Peace Commission in place of diplomats and international lawyers.

Miss Addams, whose chief work for the last year has been the promulgation of European peace through personal interviews with the warring government's heads, conferences with President Wilson and work at the International Peace Congress in San Francisco, outlined for the United States her vision of the body of men which she hopes will some day rule supreme over the destiny of nations. Her opinion, she said, also is the general opinion in Europe. Miss Addams said:

"We must have men whose minds are trained to visualize not only the needs of Germany or America but of all nations."

"Men like Marconi, and others whose entire lives have been devoted to benefiting humanity, are the ones best fitted to consider problems of international protest."

Miss Addams then referred to the diplomats and continued:

"When universal peace is attained, it will be through the medium of men whose lives have been devoted to professional war making."

"The idea behind the organization of the commission recently appointed by Secretary Daniels to aid the army and navy in problems of national defense could be applied to the organization of a World's Peace Commission."

"The geniuses of every country, the scientists and men of commercial attainments, could be selected and then delegated the power of the settlement of international disputes. These men would be broad enough to act in the interests of all peoples."

"Future generations would benefit by the work of such a body as this. The high ideals and nobleness of purpose concentrated in the commission would be reflected throughout the world."

"Reports of my recent utterances regarding diplomacy and diplomats have been misinterpreted. It is not my intention to 'slam' these government agents. But it is my firm belief that the old days of secret diplomatic conferences with each government seeking through its representatives to gain selfish ends should come to an end to be replaced by singleness of purpose to benefit all mankind through universal peace."

REPORTS ARE THAT BIG GAME IS PLENTIFUL THIS SEASON

Marked Scarcity of Rabbit, Pheasant and Squirrel in All Sections

From Indications It Will be a Busy Season on Mountains This Year—Six New Camps Being Constructed by Hunters.

According to present indications the big game season this year will be as successful as in preceding years. Although there is a marked scarcity in the smaller game such as pheasant, squirrel and rabbit, deer and bear are to be found in as great quantity as in former years. The fact that the smaller game is scarce is due to the humidity of the weather and the scarcity of food. This fact is true of all the surrounding country but especially so in the mountains as the pheasant are working in toward the settled regions where they are able to secure their food with less difficulty.

In an interview with Game Commissioner Hummelsbaugh, he stated that the elk which the state placed on the game reserve several years ago, was increasing in number and growing rapidly in stature. They are not annoying any of the farmers who live in that neighborhood, as was expected when they were first placed there but instead are staying near the game preserve, where they are under the protection of the rangers.

From reports the activities on the mountain at the present time are livelier than they have been in recent years. There are no camps of any consequence that will not be occupied during deer season and there are six new ones which have either been built or are under construction at the present time.

Probably the largest building going up is that of the game commissioners which is built at the Smith place near the game reserve. This house will be occupied by the commissioner and the rangers during the hunting season. A new camp in Rishel Hollow which is being built by a crowd of young men and a camp at the Weir place will be completed in the near future. Other camps which are being constructed are the Merrill camp, one near the site of Jenny's old camp and another at Panther rocks. These camps are being built by the business men of the town who go to the mountains every winter for two weeks' recreation.

RECRUITING GIVEN IMPETUS BY EXECUTION OF CAVELL

Britons Worked up to Fine Degree of Hatred of Germans

(By United Press) London, Oct. 23.—Taking instant advantage of the impetus given to army enlistments by Miss Edith Cavell's execution in Brussels, recruiting officers were pushing their campaign vigorously throughout the British Isles today. The Cavell case was used openly as an argument as a means of stirring up feeling against Germans to a pitch where men suitable for military service cannot resist the impulse to fight them.

LOCAL ELECTIONS MAY INDICATE POLITICAL SENTIMENT

National Issues Being Used In Election of Mass. Governor

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) Washington, Oct. 23.—Three state and five congressional elections to be held November 2 are looked to by national committees here to furnish an indication of the present political sentiment of the country.

Perhaps the most closely watched contest is that for the governorship of Massachusetts. The present governor, David I. Walsh, Democrat, is a candidate for re-election, and opposing him is former Congressman Samuel W. McCall.

Both parties have been using national issues to a large extent in their campaigns, and the result is expected to be an intimation of the disposition of New England toward the two national parties.

O. W. Weller, Republican, is running against E. C. Harrington, Democrat, for the governorship of Maryland. Internal political strife has put this state in the Republican rank. The Republicans say they will hold it this year.

In Kentucky, normally a Democratic state, Gov. A. O. Stanley is running for re-election against E. P. Morrow, Democrat.

In the thirty-sixth New York congressional district, left vacant by the death of Serno Payne, Norman J. Gould, Seneca Falls, Republican, is running against G. L. Licht, Geneva, Democrat. Congressman Payne carried the district by 11,553 in 1914.

In the Twenty-third district, New York City, W. S. Bennett, Republican, is running against E. J. Healy, Democrat. This district went Democratic by 6,822 in 1914. In the Thirty-first New York district, B. F. Small, Potsdam, Republican, is opposing W. L. Allen, Malone, Democrat. In 1914, the Republicans carried this district by 9,870.

There will be elections to fill vacancies in the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania and Fourth South Carolina districts.

The suffrage issue will come before the electors of four states—New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Recent statements by President Wilson and members of his cabinet have given the suffragists strong hope for victory.

In several states there will be elections to county and other offices.

ALLIES WILL AID SERBIANS BEFORE TEUTONS GET NISH

Large Force Advancing Northward From Salonika With Relieve Hard-Pressed Serbs

Bulgarians and Austro-Germans Meeting With Further Successes, According to London Reports.

(By United Press) London, Oct. 23.—From reports that the allies are now advancing north from Salonika it was believed today that an important battle was near with the Bulgarian forces astraddle the Salonika-Nish railway south of Uskub.

To break this Bulgarian line or to throw the invaders back to the south will be necessary before the French-British troops can get to the Serbians aid against the Austro-Germans in the north.

The Teutonic front from all accounts is progressing southward so slowly that confidence was increasing of the allies' ability to reinforce the Serbians adequately in time to save Nish.

Russians were maintaining a most successful offensive today in Galicia and north in the Dvinsk section.

London, Oct. 23.—A heavy movement of allied troops from Salonika towards Serbia was in progress, according to Athens dispatches.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Rapid Teutonic advance in Serbia was reported in a war office report issued this afternoon. Instead of remaining stuck fast along a line twelve of fifteen miles south of the Danube river and winding with the stream, the Germans and Austrians were said to be operating in places some 35 miles south of the stream with the Serbians retreating before them.

Govt. Contracts Food

Berlin, Oct. 23.—"Food supplies and price regulations," said an official announcement today, "which hitherto have been in the hands of the state authorities are about to be taken in hand by the federal government. It is considered necessary to equalize conditions in various parts of the empire. The supply is abundant, but it is desired to avoid differences and to make distributions evenly throughout Germany, assuring a sufficiency everywhere at reasonable cost."

Paris, Oct. 23.—The Serbians are now on the offensive along their northern frontier and the Austro-Germans have stopped their advance for the time, according to Athens advices today. The Bulgarians' invasion was said to consist of mere raids several of which were reported repulsed, and in some places, it was asserted, the Serbians were operating on the Bulgarian side of the frontier.

Bucharest, Oct. 23.—Russian troops will land on the Bulgarian front within two weeks, according to an assertion here today by one of the Czar's adjutants.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—Repulse by the Austrians of an Italian attack with enormous losses and a rout of the Russians who had driven a wedge into the Teutonic lines at a certain point on the battle front, were reported by the war office today.

Bulgarians have occupied Negotin and Rogeljevo, Serbia according to an official announcement this afternoon.

CONGRESS WILL BE ASKED TO RE-ENACT WEEKS LAW

Law Making Yearly Appropriations For Acquisition of Forests, Expires

Washington, Oct. 23.—One of the important questions to be brought to the attention of congress early in the forthcoming session will be the re-enactment of the Weeks law providing for the expenditure of $2,000,000 annually by the federal government for the acquisition of mountain forests, lands and watersheds necessary for the protection of standing timber and navigable waters. This popular law, which was adopted by congress in March, 1911, expired during the past summer, but the good work accomplished through its provisions during the four years of its operation has led to a general demand for its re-enactment, with the result that the American Forestry association, Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts who was author of the original measure, and others interested in the national conservation movement, have announced their intention of urging early action by congress.

During the comparatively short life of the original Weeks law, the department of agriculture sent agents into Georgia, Maine, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia, to make surveys of the timber lands and watersheds in those states, with the result that 1,217,551 acres of land were approved for purchase by the government, at a cost of approximately $5,000,000 the total amount provided in the Weeks law for the four years work.

"It is of national importance that the mountain watersheds be protected so that the stream can be capable of the highest development, and that the soils shall not be washed from the mountain sides nor the property of individuals and communities ruined or damaged by floods that could, in part, be restrained," said Senator Weeks today. "This was what we sought to accomplish in the law enacted in 1911, and now that the practicability of the movement has been demonstrated, I should be gratified to see it continued."

NOT A PARALLEL CASE

An invasion of Greece welcomed by the Greek people with open arms can scarcely challenge comparison with the tragic and bloody drive through Belgium against the solemn protest and heroic resistance of a united nation, but unquestionably there was a technical violation of neutrality territory when the Allies landed at Salonica to march to the aid of Serbia, and the two-queque accusations of the Teutons—denouncing the allies as being no less lawless than themselves—were inevitable.

As to actual conditions there is no parallel whatever. War upon Greece by the allies will not follow, and Greece may not even be drawn into the struggle on either side. The Greeks wish to see their sorely-pressed northern ally Serbia, receive aid, and they are friendly to the foreign troops on their soil, and these latter will no doubt carefully abstain from giving cause for offense in the course of the march. Premier Venizelos formally protested in the name of neutrality, but is understood to have privately winked at the proceeding. The accounts indicate that there is no hostility except in the royal household, and this is attributed to the fact that King Constantine's wife is a German princess. The final issue of this interesting affair can not now be foreseen, but the outside world is glad to feel confident that the tragic history of Belgium will not be repeated and that the Greeks in general are well satisfied.

THE TURKS BEYOND OUR REACH

It is reported that the massacres of the Armenian Christians in Asiatic Turkey have been removed on a large scale since Bulgaria's entrance into the war as Turkey's ally. The pressure to induce our government to take action of some sort and now no doubt be increased, although no answer has been received to the representations from the state department some time ago warning Turkey that further atrocities would "alienate the sympathy" of the American people. A second such warning is not likely to bring any better results.

Turkey is probably aware that she has never really enjoyed American "sympathy." In any case it has been made plain that she did not care anything about it even before she became a member of an active and vastly powerful war alliance. In fact, it was clearly intimated to our government a year ago that the Turks would tolerate no interference in their domestic affairs. A. Rustem Bey, the minister of the Constantinople government at Washington, talked so defiantly and offensively that his recall was requested. He went home nominally on "leave of absence" but his government has never disavowed his behavior or made any sign whatever.

The occasion for this outbreak as will be remembered, was the alleged effort of Great Britain and France to induce the United States to send warships to Turkish waters as a means of preventing the massacre or Armenians. The Turkish minister not only denounced the proposition but frankly intimated that the American pot was blacker than the Turkish kettle, referring to lynchings of Italians and negroes in this country. He said that for the Turkish savagery there was "provocation," but for the American there was none—or words to that effect. He seemed to think that the massacre of Christians who gave offense only by their faith was a very small matter compared with the shooting down of a band of Italian assassins in New Orleans some years ago and the occasional lynching of a negro guilty or believed to be guilty of a crime. He did not even claim that the reports of the massacres were exaggerated. He simply excused them and made counter charges against this country.

It is worth while to call all this new, for, in view of such an attitude on the part of the Turkish government a year ago, what can be expected now? Could further representations do more than merely invite further discourtesy? In view of the disturbed state of Europe and the obstinate Turk's alliance with the powerful Teutonic combination, inaction on our government's part would seem to be unavoidable so long as no outrages upon

American citizens are reported. It is painful to turn a deaf ear to the cry of helpless innocents, but it seems necessary to accept the massacres as an essential part of the accumulating tragedies of an unparalleled war. Apparently our government can accomplish nothing without going to war with Turkey, which would involve war with all Turkey's allies.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

"There is a strong Serbian population of long settlement in the south of Hungary, whose villages cover a considerable region in the Magyar kingdom opposite Serbian Belgrade and Semendria," says a war primer just given out by the National Geographic Society. "This colony, or rather, these colonies have taken no inconsiderable part in the history of Austro-Hungary, and both the colonies and Austrian Crown owe a score of gratitude to one another."

"The foundations of the Serbian colony in Hungary were laid following the decisive Turkish victory upon the plain of Kosovo on June 15, 1389. Here, the soldiers of Sultan Murad I finally crushed the independence of the Serbian tribes, though the Sultan himself was killed upon the field of battle by a Serbian knight. The Turks sold the Serbians as slaves in the markets of Constantinople, while the Janissaries stationed in their lands made life unbearable for such as remained behind. Therefore, an influx of Serbians took place across the northern border."

"As a consequence of the Serbian settlements and of their value as out-post defenders against the ever widening dominion of the Turks, George Brankovitch, Serbian despot, was granted fiefs in Hungary, and valuable concessions were granted to his people. The Serbian influx increased during Austria's wars with the Turks, 1683-1699, and the newcomers did valiant service under the Imperial standard. Emperor Leopold I granted them political and religious independence in recognition. The relations between the Serbians and the Austrians were generally of the best until the foundation of an independent Serbian state and the Balkan intrigues of Austria, Russia, Great Britain and Turkey, when a final and definite estrangement gradually came about. The old Serbian colonies in Hungary have since come to be looked upon as a Serbia 'irredenta.'"

LITTLE TALKS ON HEALTH AND HYGIENE

By Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D.

A day spent in school by a half sick child may result in a week's serious illness. If, as so often happens, the slight indisposition proves to be the beginning of some communicable disease, the result is that the other children in the school are exposed and these who are susceptible will follow in turn.

School authorities are naturally anxious to secure regularity of attendance on the part of the scholars and many parents feel that they are simply doing their duty in forcing children to go to school who complain of not feeling well. It is much better for a child to lose an occasional day's schooling than to risk occasional on an illness and exposing others.

Children's recuperative powers, generally speaking, are superior to those of older people. Proper rest and care will often ward off serious illness but this requires care and insight on the part of the parents as the children themselves are not apt to call attention to their condition until they become seriously ill.

Loss of appetite, feverishness, lassitude, discoloration of the eyes, are all indications which should be watched by symptoms of indisposition. The work which children lose in the schools they can make up far more readily than what they lose in health. Satisfactory mental progress cannot be made unless health is first considered and school authorities should realize that the total amount of time lost is far greater owing to the added possibility of spreading communicable disease when half sick children are permitted in school.

When children are ill their playmates should not be permitted to go to see them until it is absolutely certain that they are not suffering from some communicable disease. Colds are communicable. Parents should see that their children do not visit other youngsters who are ill and infants should never be taken into houses where there is danger of their contracting illness from children who are not well.

3,000 MEN TO MARCH WITH 25,000 NEW YORK SUFFRAGISTS TODAY.

Led by James Lee Laidlaw, the banker, and "The Noble 92," a brave original male suffrage marchers, 3,000 New York men today were ready to join the monster campaign-climax parade of 25,000 New York suffragists up Fifth Avenue and through the heart of New York.

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.) New York, Oct. 23.—What probably is the biggest suffrage parade on record was scheduled to start up Fifth Avenue this evening. Twenty-five thousand women and 3,000 men, carrying 25,000 fluttering banners, were forming in marching order to inspect enough favorable New York votes to give suffrage a landslide at the November 2nd election.

Among the 3,000 men marchers were such well-known personalities as these: Will Irwin, author; George Middleton, playwright; William M. Mackay, artist; Allen McCurdy, clergyman; Samuel Merwin, author; William Rees Becket, editor; Wythe Binner, poet; Sinclair Lewis and Charles Norris, authors.

These were supplemented by doctors, lawyers, actors, business men and just citizens.

Gigantic banners declaring "Women Is For Suffrage," "Suffrage Means Better Babies," "Suffrage Means Pure Milk," "Suffrage Means Clean Streets," "Seven Million Women Vote Elsewhere in the World; Why Not in New York?" and a veritable river of gay colors. In the midst of all the bright banners, however, will be this solemn cry in a deep, black border: "New York Women Have No Vote At All!"

Mrs. Leonard Thomas, Newport society leader, will carry the International Woman Suffrage Alliance's banner that will head the big parade, she will be the first woman in the entire line walking in advance of Mrs. Curtis Chapman Scott.

This section will include a "proxy procession" of the twenty-six nations represented in the alliance, but no national colors will be carried except that America and Uncle Sam will lead the women who are the public face of the movement.

The parade will start at 7 o'clock from the corner of Broadway and 14th St. and will march down Broadway to the international section, the National Woman Suffrage Association, the Empire State committee, headed by Mrs. Raymond Brown, the state president; the Woman Suffrage party, divided into boroughs and subdivided into assembly districts, and occupational groups. The largest of these will be the city employees recruited by Commissioner of Correction, Katherine B. Davis.

ACCUSED OF SLAYING HUSBAND.

Colquitt, Ga., Oct. 23.—The first case to be presented to the grand jury which convenes here Monday will be that of Mrs. Matilda Womble, a 70-year-old woman now in jail on a charge of having murdered her husband, D. B. Womble, a well-known citizen of this place. Womble was found unconscious in his bed early on the morning of August 31 last, suffering from a bullet wound in his head which caused his death a few hours later. At first it was supposed to be a case of suicide. After the burial, however, of his wife was suspected of the crime and she was taken into custody. Mrs. Womble was the only person in the house at the time of the tragedy. She admitted at the preliminary hearing that she and her husband had quarreled the night of his death, but declared her belief that he had killed himself while intoxicated.

SUPFRAGISTS OBSERVE ANNI- VERSARY.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 23.—The women suffragists of Massachusetts, who confidently expect to win in the election next month, rallied in Worcester today for a big celebration of the anniversary of the first national woman's rights convention, which met here in 1850. As the guests of honor and principal speaker the suffragists invited Dr. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, who is the only survivor of those who addressed the convention here in 1850. Dr. Blackwell celebrated here ninety-third birthday last May.

DE-HYPHENATION OF ALIENS IS BEGUN BY GOVERNMENT

Bureau of Education Launches A Campaign of Education For Alien Children

Posters Sent Out Over Country Urge
Foreigners to Attend Night Schools and Become Good Americans.

THESE ARE THE WORDS OF WILSON'S WARNING TO "THE HYPHENATED."

"There are among us who have not thought first of America, who have thought to use the might of America in some matter not of America's origination. I am in a hurry to have a line-up and let the men who are thinking first of other countries stand on one side—biblically, it should be left—and all those that are for America, first last and all the time, on the other side."

(By U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
Washington, Oct. 21.—Augmenting President's Wilson's declaration that America's foreign born residents must be de-hyphenated, the U. S. Bureau of Education today announced the beginning of a vigorous country-wide de-hyphenating campaign.

A three-part constructive program is being developed by the bureau, with the following features:

The insuring that newly-arrived immigrant children are immediately placed in the public schools and not sent into factories and mills.

The promotion of the naturalization of alien residents of the United States.

The teaching of English to all foreign born residents of this country who can not read and speak that language.

The first step, that of seeing that newly-arrived immigrant children are placed in schools, is now being carried out through co-operation between the various school officials of the country and the immigration officials at the ports of entry.

When a group of immigrants arrive, the inspectors at the port learn to what localities the individual families with children are going. They then send to the proper school authorities the names of the children they can expect. These officials then make strenuous efforts to prevent any evasion of the compulsory education laws by getting the children into schools as soon as they arrive.

In addition, the school authorities are also actively engaged in "recruiting" work among the fathers of these children to induce them to take out naturalization papers.

A first edition of 50,000 brightly-colored, attractively printed posters, setting forth in English and the six principal immigrant languages the advantages of becoming a citizen, have been published. The bureau is sending these posters to 25,000 postmasters and 8,000 school officials throughout the country, by whom they will be posted conspicuously to catch the eye of the unaccustomed immigrant.

Educational authorities are also following up this printed appeal with personal talks to immigrants. A series of receptions is being planned at which both government officials and naturalized immigrants will talk to these men.

The posters sent out impress upon every alien who can not read and speak English, the importance of learning the language from the standpoint of becoming a good citizen and making a good wage. They tell him to go to the nearest night school and register or to go to the postmaster or school official nearest him and enlist their aid in getting in touch with a school.

In a letter to school superintendents the Bureau of Education points out that there are 2,953,000 foreign-born whites 10 years or over in the United States and no less than 2,898,606, 15 years or over, generally beyond the compulsory education laws, who can not speak English. Commenting upon this situation the letter says:

"These facts seem so appalling when taken in connection with the figures for illiteracy which are almost as large, that they call for action on the part of the federal government which will reach the non-English-speaking immigrant individually."

Officials of the bureau intimated, unofficially, that in times of national crises such a situation might easily prove, if not disastrous, at least extremely embarrassing to the government.

Realizing the danger of having such a large body of the inhabitants of this country almost wholly unacquainted with the national thought of the nation, the bureau is going to push the campaign of education through with all the force and speed possible and probably will ask con-

timates for the next appropriation.

GOVERNMENT EDUCATOR PRAISES NEWSPAPER ASSISTANCE.

Washington, Oct. 21.—"The smaller newspapers of the country have to their credit one of the really great achievements of the last few years—I mean the spread of compulsory education," declared W. Carson Ryan, Jr., editor of the United States Bureau of Education, in an interview with the United Press.

"Two years ago there was six states without compulsory education laws; today there are but two. The change is largely due to the smaller newspapers. 'Here, in the Bureau of Education, we have learned from years of experience to depend upon the paper of this type. 'It is a spurious thing that much of the educational progress of today is being made in the smaller towns. The big city has the system, the organization, the discipline; but the smaller city is apt to have the independence and spirit that makes for progress. 'The small newspaper is not able for its boosting of progressive ideas. It is apt to be in closer touch with its constituency.'"

HOME FOLKS HONOR BILL CARRIGAN.

Lewiston, Me., Oct. 22.—The good folk of Androscoggin County turned out en masse today to do honor to their most distinguished fellow citizen—William Carrigan, the man who piloted the Boston American league base ball team to the world's championship. The big affair was not only a welcome-home demonstration but a birthday celebration as well, for it was just thirty-two years ago today that "Our Bill" opened his eyes and found himself in the town of Lewiston.

The Lewiston chamber of commerce arranged the Carrigan celebration as a climax to the annual harvest carnival that has held forth here this week. Invitations were sent to the governor of Maine, representatives in congress, mayors of the principal cities and other "great lights" of the Pine Tree State to grace the occasion with their presence. The celebration program provided for a big parade, music by several bands, a display of fireworks and a reception to Manager Carrigan at the City Hall.

Carrigan is a simon-pure Lewiston product. Lewiston was his birthplace and Lewiston has always been his home. His first base ball training was received on the Lewiston high school team. At the age of 17 he went to Worcester to attend Holy Cross College. As a member of the Holy Cross team Bill soon developed into a star player behind the bat.

Carrigan's brilliant work as a college player attracted the attention of several major league clubs who offered to sign him. Bill picked Boston as the town to play in and in 1906 affixed his J. Hancock to a Red Sox contract. Being a "rah, rah" past-timer Bill was shipped to Toronto, where he could inhale some professional atmosphere before becoming a big show regular.

Carrigan remained with the Toronto team but a short time when the sale of Lou Criger to the St. Louis Browns brought him back to Boston. William lost no time in showing that he was the proper person to fill Criger's shoes.

Several young backstops carded as wonders have broken into the big yard in late years, but Bill remains the same old "brick house" behind the plate. Apparently there will be no need to hang a "to let" sign on him for some years to come.

Carrigan made his debut as a manager in 1913, when he was selected to succeed Jake Stahl as pilot of the Red Sox. Now he is manager of the world's champions. Some rush to the front, that.

Fashion Hints By Margaret Mason

BY MARGARET MASON,
(Written for The United Press)

Oh look who's here!
They're models, dear.
To show you what is smart;
If you'd be swell
Just eye them well
And follow what they start.

New York, Oct. 22.—Miss New York certainly ought to know how to dress and where and when with all the divers fashion shows going on for her benefit these last two weeks.

Mrs. Belle Armstrong Whitney started the fashionable ball rolling with her show at the Cohan theatre and left Miss and also Mr. New York gasping at her display of beauteous model frocks and frills on even more beauteous living models.

She has now moved on to give Miss Philadelphia, Miss Boston, Miss Washington, Miss Chicago and all the other American Misses a chance to see what's what in the fashion line.

Then Wanamaker's and Gimbel's gave their fashion promenades and the big fashion show for the benefit of the Actor's fund at Carnegie Hall added new tips and much zest with the confections shown to advantage on real live actress models.

May Irwin, Marie Dressler and Tride Friganza were there of course, but being perfect fifty-sixes they contended themselves and the public by being dainty little program sellers nor aspired to join the living model class.

Last but not least came Lucile's select opening. None of the common herd were admitted to this most exclusive of fashion shows. No two-dollar theatre ticket even could pry the hol polloi into this most holy of holies.

Only the lucky possessor of a mauve, engraved card of invitation could hope to obtain admission; and even then the press of select ones was so great that special little gray-frosted ventures had to hold fast to the front door against encroaching and panting females.

Once inside the portals of 37 W. 57th Street, which is the house of Lucile, Ltd., the lucky invited ones settled down in the pearl tinted interior on a precarious gold chair and marveled again.

To the strains of the most insidious music, six of the most pulchritudinous models in captivity glided, (real honest to goodness models never walk,) in changing raiment that would make even the lilies of the field fade away in hopeless unattainment.

Each and every toilette designed by Lucile has a pet name all its own. "Softly Purring" is a Champagne velvet gown, if you please; "What Every Woman Knows," a feasted scarlet chiffon and silver tea dress; "I Miss You So," a black and white check velvet afternoon dress; "The Vibrant Heart of Heaven," a sapphire blue tulle and brocade evening gown; "Sniego 'wrochka," a white velvet and black fox restaurant gown and "Svand Aljure," a black and silver brocade evening coat.

It really must take as much of an artist to christen the gowns as to design 'em. Think how trifling it must be to Lucile as she lolls in her Louis Seize bed and thinks up first of a ravishing restaurant gown, a delectable tea dress or a fascinating dance frock, to have a waiting secretary or one of her entourage say:

"Well, now that you have thought the dress, what are you going to name it?"

I understand Lucile designs her most successful creations in bed. Some of them look like it. It wasn't so much the frocks that left me gasping as the models wavered by, but their hair. Goodness knows the gowns were amazing enough with their tight-boned bodices, full crinoline skirts and all the earmarks of 1850, but the most amazing thing of all was the coiffures. I wonder does Lucile design them too.

One model wore her hair parted in the middle and smoothed down tight and slick in front with a little tight braid draped down around each ear.

A blonde had hers parted in the middle and also slicked down over each ear and slicked up in the back until it erupted in a fan-shaped loop on the top of her head.

Yet another blonde in a wondrous white satin and green embroidered dance frock dubbed "To Smile Again" had her hair all peeled back from her face and done in a coronet braid stuck through with a diamond arrow at such a killing angle as to guarantee the blinding of her first dancing partner of the evening.

Aren't you just dying to buy heaps of Lucile models so you can languidly say: "Well, I guess I'll wear my 'Over the Garden Wall,' this morning; and this afternoon I'll slip on 'My Part I'll Play,' but I just can't make up my mind whether to wear 'Ghosts of Dead Roses' or 'Sun Blest Are You' for this evening?"

FOR SALE—Male weighing ten hundred. Will work double or single and is good for driving or farm work. Also wish to sell harness and buggy. Inquire Stanley Dismick, Rockton.

CHAMPION WRESTLER MEET.

New York, Oct. 23.—Alex champion wrestler of the two Waldek Zhyzsko, champion land, will meet in a final bout at Madison Square Garden today night. Critics predict Aberg will have a hard fight to the giant Pole's shoulder. The two have met. In the international tournament at the Madison Opera House last spring they wrestled several hours to a draw. The coming contest will start at 9 o'clock and the men will wrestle to a finish if they have to continue all night.

LORD BRYCE PLACES EUROPEAN WAR UPON THE TELEGRAPH

(By United Press)

London, Oct. 23.—A new "cause" of the European war, and one of the most original yet given, has been propounded by Lord Bryce former British ambassador at Washington.

Who attributes the conflict to the invention of the telegraph. In an address before the British Academy Lord Bryce thus put the blame on telegraphy.

"In the twelve fatal days between July and August 4 last year, there was no time for reflection. Telegrams between London and Paris crossed one another, and it would have needed a mind of more than human amplitude and energy to grasp and correlate all the issues involved and to foresee the results that would follow the various lines of action possible in a game so complicated."

"Even the intellect of a Caesar or a Bonaparte would have been unequal to the task."

"Here the telegraph has worked for evil. Had the communications passed by written dispatches as they would have done eighty years ago, it is probable that war might have been avoided."

Ladies' Tailoring and Dressmaking. All orders guaranteed to be delivered in 10 days.

Sloping Shoulders and Sleeves. Conforms to the shoulders without wrinkling under arms.

Perfect Shoulder-Stay. Keeps garment from stretching across the shoulder, and holds sleeve in place.

Curved Armhole. Brings arm seams to the natural curve of the shoulder and holds garment snugly and smoothly up under arm, doing away with unnecessary cloth.

Three-Cornered Garter. Is so shaped as to relieve the usual strain at the thigh. Insures greater comfort and longer wear.

Low-Neck Sleeves. Just as a woman is fuller across the bust than the back, so this garment is made with extra fullness in front.
